AWARD CONTRACTS FOR NEW JUVENILE DETENTION HOME

Doylestown Firm is Recipient Of the General Contract

AT THE COUNTY HOME To Consist of Two Rooms and Two Bathrooms; Miss Bright in Charge

DOYLESTOWN, May 9.—Bucks County Commissioners announce the awarding of contracts for the building of a juvenile detention home here.

Bailey-Foltz Company, of this place, who submitted a bid of $980, was awarded the general building contract, and the M. A. Rufe Estate, the lowest bidders for the plumbing and heating work, were awarded the contract of $372 for plumbing and $114 for heating.

A Jenkintown contractor submitted a bid of $31 for the electrical work and Charles B. Moyer's bid totaled $40.50. The County Commissioners have decided to consult the architect with reference to plans and material. The electrical contract was not awarded.

Work on the new quarters, which will consist of two rooms and two bathrooms, over the office in the Bucks County Home, will get under way within the next week. The quarters will be located on the second floor and will house the delinquent boys and girls, who will be detained at the County Home, pending care by Miss L. Gertrude Bright, probation officer of Bucks county.

The delinquents will be under the direct supervision of Miss Bright, but they will be cared for by the wife of one of the farmers of the County Home.

The Commissioners will approve the bond and contracts as prepared by the contractors within the next few days.

Contractors and their bids follow: E. Allen Reeves, Abington, general, $1120; plumbing, $510; heating, $175; electric, $50.

T. Wilmer Fesmire, Jenkintown, general, $1030; plumbing and heating, $670; electric, $31.

David D. Nyce, this place, general, $1160.69.

Conrad Myers, Buckingham, general, $1045.89.

P. Russell Fesmire, Huntingdon Valley, general, $1035; plumbing, $490; heating, $171; electric, $36.

Plumbing and heating bids: Alfred Tettemer, Neshaminy, plumbing, $599; heating, $156.

John J. Rufe & Sons, this place, plumbing, $515; heating, $148.

Frank H. Ahlum, Richlandtown, plumbing, $480; heating, $176.

Dr. Carmon Ross Tenders Resignation at Doylestown

DOYLESTOWN, May 9.—Dr. Carmon Ross, supervising principal of the Doylestown schools, presented his resignation Monday evening to the members of the School Board, to become effective about August 15.

The resignation was tendered because Dr. Ross was recently elected president of the Northwestern State Teachers' College at Edinboro in Erie County, and has accepted the position after serving the Doylestown public school for 29 years.

The School Board regretfully accepted the resignation.

The School Board adopted a budget for next year, operating at an expenditure of $99,000 against a budget of $104,000 this year. This means a reduction of $4,500. Two years ago the board operated on a budget of $112,000.

The board did not increase any salaries, nor did it reduce any.

According to a report, submitted by the tax collector, real estate taxes amounting to nearly $3000 will not be paid, and must be entered as liens according to law. In view of this delinquency on the part of the taxpayers, the reduced valuation of $233,000 on real estate, and a threatened loss of nearly $5,000 in appropriations because of the failure of the Legislature to pass the appropriations necessary under the Edmonds Act, the School Board faces a serious problem, it was stated.

There was no increase on the real estate tax rate, which is 10 mills, but the per capita tax was raised from $2 to $3. It is believed that this increase will balance the budget provided the real estate taxes are collected.

Non-resident pupils, wishing to enroll in the Doylestown high school, will report for enrollment at the local schools on Friday afternoon, June 1, Dr. Ross stated.

SPECIAL MEETING

There will be a special meeting of the official board of the Harriman M. E. Church immediately following the mid-week prayer service this evening.

Has To Go Into Court For Having Unmuzzled Dog

(Special to the Courier)

NEW YORK, May 9.—Miss Irma M. Steele, of Bristol, received a suspended sentence in Magistrates Court here today for having an unmuzzled dog.

Miss Steele, who left Bristol this morning and arrived in Court one hour and forty minutes late after a hurried trip, had been visiting her brother, Joseph Gill, of this city, over the weekend and had run afoul of the law when she took her brother's dog out for an airing on Sunday. A patrolman had given her a summons.

PUMPING DOLLARS OUT OF PA. FOR SOUTH AND WEST

Pennsylvania Protective Union Gives Out Interesting Statement of Facts

$100 FOR EVERY DOLLAR

"A deluge of dollars is being pumped out of Pennsylvania to be distributed to the south and west," according to a statement today by the Pennsylvania Protective Union. This fact was made known by the Campaign Committee of Senator David A. Reed of which Judge Claude T. Reno is the chairman.

Continuing the statement says:

Whether you are a job-holder, merchant, business man, banker, or one engaged in a professional pursuit, you are paying these dollars—and at an average rate of $100 going out for every dollar that is coming back.

The question you have got to decide is whether you are going to have able, experienced and courageous representation in the U. S. Senate in these all-important matters, or representation that has pledged itself to "yes" all proposals, good or bad, in which you are made the object of some new experiment.

Normally Pennsylvania pays one-tenth of the whole national tax bill. So, when the Federal Government hands out ten billions of dollars in various kinds of subsidies, a billion dollars of that sum is a mortgage upon Pennsylvania and must be paid by the people of this State.

How much is a billion dollars? It is the equivalent of a dollar a minute from the beginning of the Christian Era to the present time.

And that mortgage already has been created against this State and its people. Directly and indirectly you will shoulder that burden when we begin to "pay the fiddler" through crushing taxes that will bear down upon every man and woman in this Commonwealth.

The Federal Government (under A. A.) has entered upon a constantly expanding program of paying the large producers of Cotton, Wheat, Corn, Hogs, etc., to curtail production. The object of this curtailment is to increase the prices of those agricultural products.

The money for this particular subsidy does not come from the general tax fund, but is derived from special taxes imposed upon the processing of these subsidized products. These taxes are added into the retail prices of foods and clothing.

In other words, to prices that already have been raised through controlled production, there is added another increase to pay for the subsidy which caused the first increase.

If you buy food and clothing, there is no way that you can escape your share of the 100-to-1 ratio in which Pennsylvanians are being assessed to finance this subsidy.

Here are the Government's own figures on the subject—For every dollar that Pennsylvania consumers pay in A. A. taxes, the people of this State get back, in A. A. benefits, the minuscule sum of ONE CENT.

But Arkansas is the State of Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic leader of the Senate; and for every dollar the consumers of that State pay, they get back $26.57.

Mississippi is the State of Senator Pat Harrison, chairman of the Finance Committee of the Senate; and for every dollar the consumers of that State pay, they get back $23.20.

Proportioned to what they pay in Arkansas gets back 2657 times the amount that Pennsylvania receives; Mississippi gets 2320 times what Pennsylvania gets; and so it runs, throughout the list of southern and western non-industrial States.

Those are some of the facts that are just coming to light.

Few States are so vitally affected by national legislation as Pennsylvania, and no State has greater need for a U. S. Senator who, in ability, courage, and experience, is fitted for the rigorous requirements of looking after his State's diversified interests.

In these circumstances, failure of Pennsylvania to retain Senator David A. Reed in the U. S. Senate would be almost inconceivable—and especially so since his principal opponent for the Republican nomination has pledged himself to ALL the policies of a Democratic Administration, irrespective of their consequences to the people of this State.

Senator Reed is rounding out 12 years of service in which he not only has acquired invaluable experience, but also a seniority by which he is

MAJOR THOMAS BARNESLEY OF THE ROYAL AMERICAN REGIMENT OF FOOT

Historical Paper Read by Mr. Barnesley, Newtown, at meeting of Bucks County Historical Society in Doylestown, May 5th

On the August 22nd following, in another long letter to Penn. Col. Bouquet closed with the following bit of gossip, which gives an interesting sidelight as to how Capt. Barnesley was regarded by his superior officer:

The Gentlemen of the Mess beg leave to present their Respects to you. Capt. Barnesley is not a little proud of the honors reserved for him, and raises already his ambition to a Wig of Mr. St. Pattern conscious that the Dignity of a Justice is in exact proportion with the Curis of his Periwig. He is now pouring upon Burns' Book and no doubt will soon become an honor to the Bench.

*Idem—P. 206.

On December 3, 1764, at Fort Loudoun, Thomas Barnesley who signed himself D. Q. M. G. [meaning (?) Deputy Quarter Master General] wrote to Joseph Shippen, Esq., Governor Penn's secretary, as follows:*

By a letter I received from Col. Bouquet, dated the 18th ultimo, at the Camp at Muskingham, am desired to acquaint the Governor, that the Light Horse belonging to the Province may very soon be expected at this Post, and that it may be necessary that he would please to appoint some person to take care of them, Either to Dispose of them and their Appointments, or otherwise, as he will think proper, and as I imagine they will be here before a person can be appointed from Philadelphia, shall do my best to have them taken care of, until I can Receive the Governor of your further Directions.

On the 15th, Shippen replied that Barnesley was to send the horses and their equipment to Lancaster, care of James Webb, and then told Webb to auction them at public sale without delay. "Test they should eat their heads off before they are sold."

*Idem—P. 209.

On December 7, 1764, Thomas Barnesley was commissioned one of the Justices of the Peace of Bucks County. On May 2, 1765, General Thomas Gage wrote the following* to Governor Penn concerning a petition about frontier massacres:

I am to acknowledge the honor of your Letter of the 22d of April, together with a Petition of sundry Inhabitants of the County of York and Cumberland, in the Province of Pennsylvania. I have laid this Petition before Brigadier Gen'l Bouquet, that the same might be taken into due consideration, and I have the honor to transmit you the Report made to me upon the several Heads contained therein.

It appears from the Report, that the Petitioners have no positive Right to the Claims they make; and that many of their allegations are without Foundation. Some poor People have suffered, and deserved to be redressed, and if any method could be fallen upon to alleviate those who are really entitled to redress, without having a thousand unjust demands imposed upon the Crown, I should be very glad to concur with you, in doing them all the service in my Power. How to do this, I am really at a loss to say at present, but I shall talk with Captain Barnesley upon it, who paid the Horse Masters. If the People had set forth to Captain Barnesley and Mr. Byers, during their sitting upon the Accounts at Carlisle, only such cases in which they were really aggrieved, tho' their Instructions might have prevented their doing without Justice, their Claims would have been ascertained and reported, that some satisfaction might be made them afterwards. But their Demands were so very unreasonable and so numerous, that the Commissioners were obliged to reject them.

*Idem—P. 219.

Capt. Barnesley went to England in September 1766, and in the following year was retired from the army with the pay of a private service list and title of major. The Army Lists after 1767 do not include his name. When Barnesley returned in 1767 to Croydon, his home in Bensalem township, he brought with him, for some reason or other, four of his sisters' children, William Smith, Jimima Shepherd, Robert Shepherd, Jr., and John Stainforth.

William Smith was baptized March 12, 1740. He became later in life a captain in the army, and probably lived in Bristol township. He was bequeathed 20 Guineas by the will of John Clark, his uncle's quarter master, who described him as "Capt. Wm. Smith, nephew of the late Major Barnesley".

*Recorded in Will Book No. 5, P. 321.

Jimima Shepherd was born in 1744, and married at Croydon, a sail maker named Robert Bridges, son of Edward Bridges V. Robert's residence was on Front Street, Philadelphia, at what used to be No. 259, and his sail loft was on the Wharf north of Lombard Street. Robert and Jimima ((Shepherd) Bridges had ten children: Barnesley, Robert, Cornelia, Mary, Robert, Jr.,

Edward, Sarah, Thomas, Harriet and Amelia.

Robert Shepherd, Jr., was baptized February 12, 1745. Nothing is known about him except that he came to Pennsylvania.

John Stainforth changed his name to John Barnesley, but when he did it, the writer has not been able to determine. Apparently though, he changed it before coming to this country, as his marriage, Revolutionary War records, deeds, etc., are all recorded under his Barnesley name. John married on May 5, 1772, Elizabeth Van Court, the daughter of Moses and Mary (Quick) Van Court, of Huntingdon Valley, Montgomery County. They were the parents of seven children: Thomas, William, Mary, Elizabeth, George, Moses, Sarah, and Ann. William Barnesley married Jane Van Horn, and was the ancestor of a large family in Pennsylvania, of which the writer, since the death of his father, the late vice-president of our Society, is the only living representative bearing the name. Moses Barnesley, the other son of John that left issue removed to Maryland where many of his descendants are still living in Baltimore and in Montgomery Counties.

Not long after the return of Major Barnesley from England, with his niece and three nephews, his wife, Bersheba, died. The County Histories say she survived him several years, but this is not correct. The following death record is transcribed from the Parish Register of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Burlington:

Buried, Barbara, wife of Thomas Barnesley, Esq., of the township of Bensalem in the county of Bucks, in Pennsylvania. Died on the 18th and was buried (at Bristol in the same county) on the 21st of August 1767.

The above record was written by Jonathan Odell, the minister, as Barbara, but her name in her husband's own hand writing in his will is Bersheba, as is also the spelling of her name in the "Obituary Notes" by Isaac Comly, of Byberry.

*Transcript in the Pennsylvania Genealogical Society.

On March 8, 1768, at the State house in Philadelphia, the American Philosophical Society elected Capt. Thomas Barnesley of Bucks County, Pa., their 77th member. According to the minutes of the Society, the Captain was not a very regular attendant at their meetings. The only time, apparently, that he was present was on the following November 15th, when he proposed for membership the name of his old friend, neighbor, and mortgage holder, Gilbert Hicks, Esq.

On April 9, 1768, Capt. Barnesley bought from Ann Paxson for £80 a negro man named Will. Three years later when his estate was inventoried, Will was appraised at £75, showing that in this three year period there was only a depreciation of £5.

In the original Supervisors' Book of Bensalem Township now preserved in the library of our Society, Thos. Barnesley's signature appears in the first two years, 1769 & 1770, as one of the four auditors. On May 23, 1770, Thomas Barnesley was reappointed Justice of the Peace of Bucks County.

Prior to the Revolution, the vicinity of Newportville was known as Barnesley's Ford, an Act of Assembly passed March 9, 1771, declared.

The rivers Delaware and Lehigh and parts of Neshaminy Creek as far up as Barnesley's Ford, and no further, common highways for the purpose of navigation up and down the same.

Thomas Barnesley died without issue on November 11, 1771, and was buried, according to the Parish Record of St. Mary's Church, on the 13th in Bristol. Family tradition says that he was buried beside his wife in the aisle of St. James' Church, but why he should be buried in the aisle instead of the church yard is mysteriously unexplained, and is probably not true. No gravestone remains, and there is no way of finding out the exact spot of interment.

Thomas Barnesley's will was dated August 16, 1771. It was probated on December 2, 1771 in Philadelphia. It was not a very carefully worded document, and after the death of his wife and the adoption of his niece and three nephews, he should have changed it, but he did not. The fact that one of the witnesses was also a legatee, made it very complicated.

On December 15, 1772, William Rodman, Sr., and Judge Gilbert Hicks, his executors, conveyed Croydon to John Swift for £2,955 sterling. John Barnesley was one of the witnesses thereto. On November 13, 1773 the executors sold to Henry Mitchell, mason, of Bristol township, a 10-acre tract in that township which Major Barnesley had purchased from John Gregg, sheriff.

These are the few data that the writer has been able to gather concerning his collateral ancestor; it is much to be

Women Gardeners Are To Hear Mrs. Henry Parry

The Travel Club gardeners will meet at the club house on Friday at three o'clock, at which time Mrs. Henry Parry, Langhorne, will give "A Lesson in Judging." This talk will be followed during the Summer by a flower tournament.

These local gardeners announce that 10 students from both the Bristol public schools and the Bristol Township public schools have been assigned to make a survey of elms in this section, as a guard against the spread of the Dutch elm disease. Boy Scouts are also taking up the work. The Dutch elm disease, for which there is no known remedy, is now in New York, Connecticut, and New Jersey, and the beetle which carries it is known to be at Valley Forge. The government officials state all people can help in the campaign to keep the disease out of Pennsylvania by locating elms, and noting their condition, especially in the region from Philadelphia to Stroudsburg. Signs of the disease include: In Spring there are small or few buds; small leaves or leaves late in opening on any part of the tree; and in the Summer yellow leaves at the top of the tree before normal time for fading. If such conditions are noted a request is made that such be reported to the Travel Club or to Curtis May of the U. S. Laboratories at East Orange, N. J.

ST. ANN'S FAILS TO WIN IN OPENING SEASON

Victory Was in Grasp But Team Faltered and Edgely Won

FINAL SCORE WAS 5 TO 4

BRISTOL TWILIGHT LEAGUE

Schedule for Tonight
DAMP WASH vs. JEFFERSON
(Leedom's Field)

By T. M. Juno

St. Ann's A. A., champions of 1933, had victory within its grasp last night on its home field but faltered in the closing stanzas to allow the Edgely Braves to creep up and deadlock the score and then score a run which gave the Edgelyites a 5-4 win.

Fielding which was adroit and spectacular featured the fray. Both teams' infields proved skillful in the handling of hard hit grounders to them and each nine was credited with a twin-killing. The one completed by the Saints, Pico to DiBlassio to Oriola was fast and well-timed.

In all, both teams accepted seventy-four of the eighty-two chances accorded them, eight errors being chalked up. St. Ann's was credited with seventeen assists, two more than Edgely received.

"Mike" DeRisi went the entire distance for the Purple and Gold and deserved a better fate than accorded him. Going into the sixth, DeRisi held a 4-2 lead and the way he was mowing down his opponents things were bright for the St. Ann's following. Then came the breaks, the bad ones.

Lawler doubled to center. Leinheiser connected for a long fly to center which Tosti completely missed for an error. Lawler scored and before the ball was retrieved by Fields, Leinheiser reached third base. Manager

Schnader Pledges To Protect Penna. Wage Scales

PITTSBURGH, May 9.—Speaking here last night, Attorney General Schnader pledged himself, if elected Governor, to take steps for the protection of Pennsylvania wage scales through prevention of dumping of manufactured goods at below-cost prices in the State's markets.

He declared that, while fidelity to the codes of fair practice achieved through the action of the National Administration will be one of his aims, he will seek to fight nation-wide blanket policies which permit the dumping of goods produced by cheap labor in Pennsylvania's markets.

"In the present sharp competition for markets, the products of cheap and oppressed labor are often dumped in the most favorable markets. Pennsylvania is such a market.

"As I do not want to see the Pennsylvania farmer brought down to the level of some of his western and southern competitors, I do not want to see the Pennsylvania artisan, mechanic, the skilled worker or the laborer brought down to the level of working people in states with labor and wage standards lower than ours."

Mr. Schnader said that while he regards conduct of the Department of Labor and Industry "a major responsibility," he is opposed to centralization and to autocratic administration of the departments of Labor and Industry, and Welfare.

"I believe the working people are happiest who are free to improve themselves in their own communities as citizens and as property holders. As I believe in home rule for local government, I believe in self-government by the people in their various occupations. As I would not oppress the farmer or the teacher by bureaucratic control at Harrisburg, I would not oppress the laboring man by autocratic Departments of Labor and Industry and Welfare."

INSULL TO TRY FOR RELEASE

Chicago, Ill., May 9.—Immediate steps will be taken to effect the release of Samuel Insull from the Cook County Jail, his son, Samuel Insull, Jr., announced in an exclusive interview with I. N. S. today. "We are not sleeping on this matter," declared young Insull. He said he conferred late yesterday with his lawyer, Floyd E. Thompson, and it was quite likely Thompson would go before a Judge today on a writ of habeas corpus contending that the fixing of $200,000 Federal Bond for Insull "was so high it amounted to refusal of bond."

Young Insull said he had received several telegrams from friends interested in bringing about the release of his father from jail. He further asserted he would not be surprised at reports that a syndicate had been formed to raise sufficient money to cover the bond of $200,000 demanded by the Federal government, and $50,000 by the State. "It would be the natural thing to happen," said young Insull.

Asked how his father was taking his incarceration in jail young Insull said, "My father is resigned to his present situation."

Insull, Sr., is in the hospital section of the jail where he was assigned after physicians had examined him yesterday.

OUT TO GET BOOTLEGGERS

TWO HOUSE FIRES HERE WITHIN 7-HOUR PERIOD

Leaking Gas Caused One Blaze and Children The Other

LOSS KEPT DOWN TO $110

Two fires in private residences within seven hours yesterday kept the Consolidated Fire Department on the jump. Both of the blazes were caught in their early stages. The losses were kept at a minimum and the firemen quickly responded to both alarms.

Eliminating gas escaping from a meter in the cellar is blamed for the fire at 267 Jackson street, at about 7.30 last evening. The property is owned by Louis C. Spring and occupied by Andrew Gall.

The blaze was confined to the cellar, near the point of origin, and Fire Chief James L. McGee estimates the loss at about $10.

Shortly before one o'clock yesterday afternoon fire was discovered eating its way up the side of the property at 311 Wilson street. The property is owned by Harland Howell and occupied by Tony Angelo.

Youngsters, it is stated, were playing with matches and in the absence of adults set fire to the side of the property. The flames burned up the outside of the house to the second floor.

Firemen were called and quickly extinguished the flames with a loss estimated at $100 by Chief McGee.

A worthwhile and interesting program on "Temperance and Missions" was presented at the W. C. T. U. meeting in the Travel Club home, last evening, by Miss Anna Heritage, including articles selected by Miss Heritage and read by various members telling of the valuable co-operation of temperance and missionary forces in foreign lands. The program also included a playlet, "The New Ideal," in which the parts were taken by Mrs. Raymond Beswick, and the Misses Laura Ellis, Jane Rogers, Ruth Weik and Anna Heritage. ### FAVORITISM CHARGED Controller General McCarl has caused to be thrown open for new bidding all of the war department's recent $10,000,000 automotive purchases with the exception of one truck award amounting to $350,000.

A situation resembling somewhat that which existed with respect to the awarding of air-mail contracts recently cancelled apparently was uncovered, according to the reasons given by Mr. McCarl for his rulings making it necessary that new bids be submitted. Awarding of the contracts had been held up pending completion of investigations ordered by the house military affairs committee.

The controller found, he said, that the war department in soliciting bids had drawn its specifications in such a way that competition was eliminated.

"This is not a new difficulty," he said in one of his letters to the war department. "Rather, it seems to be an ever-growing one. The tendency toward minuteness in stipulating what will be acceptable in mechanical construction, etc., has been increasingly apparent during recent years. It is now openly asserted that it is due, in some measure, at least, to high pressure salesmanship and purpose to favor particular concerns."

Condemning the tendency, he pointed out that it was wrong "if the government is to continue to look to industry to meet its needs through supplying automotive equipment assembled in whole or in substantial part."

STANDS ON ITS RIGHTS

The United States will not unprotestingly see its rights in China trampled on by Japan.

This, in substance, is the warning to Tokyo contained in the statement by Secretary Hull intended as a reply to the newly announced Japanese policy excluding other nations from certain commercial activities in China.

The statement was made after Tokyo had modified slightly the policy as outlined by its "unofficial spokesman."

The reaction in Great Britain, the United States and other powers that have interests in that part of the world was not exactly favorable. Although most of these nations, including America, have pressing domestic problems to solve, it was shown that they would not be inclined to respect the new Japanese policy, which, as outlined in Tokyo, would exclude them from Chinese markets and in other ways work to their own and China's disadvantage. In addition, there was the nine-power treaty to take into consideration.

This pledges the signatory powers to "respect the sovereignty, the independence and the territorial integrity of China."

So long as abundance means starvation and a short crop means good times, the world needn't worry about a surplus above the cars.

It's nice to have two cars—a cheap one and a fine one. You can use the cheap one to pull the fine one off when it won't start.

"MA CINDERELLA" by Harold Bell Wright

CHAPTER I.

This story happened in the Ozark Mountains, not many years ago.

The Ozarks, as you no doubt know, are in southern Missouri and northern Arkansas. The neighborhood of the story is not far from the boundary line which separates the two states; but for reasons which you will understand later I shall not say on which side of the line. For the same good reasons I will substitute names of my own invention for the people and places mentioned. In these days of federal watchfulness and easy libel one cannot be too careful. In all save these small but most necessary exceptions I shall tell the truth.

About forty miles, as the crow flies, from the Haskel place, a narrow-gauge baby railroad escaped from its parents one day, and wiggled and crawled through the woods and between and over the hills until it lost itself and stopped, too tired to go farther, too discouraged to go back. On the exact spot where the baby railroad gave up the ghost they built a shack for a boy telegrapher, a turntable for a toy locomotive, and a hut for a handcar, and called it all Wilderness Station.

From the station Wilderness Road drags itself fourteen lazy, crooked miles further into the wooded hills, fording the creeks in the narrow valleys, loafing along the hillsides, and toiling over the ridges until it climbs heavily up to Pine Knob store, which is on Pine Ridge at the foot of Pine Knob. Crossing the more pretentious Ridge Highway at the store, our road saunters indifferently on down a hogback to the Haskel place, where it hesitates a bit before moving on through the woods to its final destination—Wilderness Lodge. Wilderness Lodge is a clubhouse on a bluff overlooking Gold River, where a group of city folks spend their summer vacations.

Uncle Jimmie Cartwright says: "Hit air plum' humorous the way them Lodge folks wear themselves out a-tryin' to rest from wearin' themselves out so's they can go back to the city an' wear themselves out some more."

It was a sunny morning in early summer. "Cawn-plantin'" was well past. In the bottom field of Ann Haskel's little backwoods farm the rows of green blades could already be seen from the log house on the hillside. A few days more and it would be time to begin cultivating; the Ozark farmers call it "plowin'." Uncle Jimmie was working his slow passage along Wilderness Road between the Lodge and the Haskel place on his way to Pine Knob store to "fetch a new pint fer his cawn plow an' a passel of store tobacco fer the old woman." I say "working his passage" because Uncle Jimmie was riding an ancient and melancholy mule and at every reluctant step of his unwilling mount the little old dried-up wrinkled mountaineer's heels thumped a hollow resounding thump on the gray skeleton's ribs, while Uncle Jimmie's gray head bobbed and his white chin-whiskers wagged and jerked in perfect time to the mournful tune.

As he laboriously approached the Haskel house (a log house of rather more imposing proportions than the typical cabin home of the Ozark mountaineer) Uncle Jimmie scanned the premises with wistful interest. He was wondering if it would be his fortune that morning, to "meet up" with Ann Haskel, or Nance, or Jeff. Perhaps, if Ann were in a kindly mood—perhaps she would invite him to "light" and rest himself for a spell. She might even offer a swig of real mountain hospitality. Or Jeff, if he were around, might, in a neighborly spirit—that is, Jeff might if Ann were away. Uncle Jimmie's blue eyes sparkled and he touched his dr. lins with his tongue in pleased anticipation of what could so easily happen. It was likely though, he reflected, that Jeff would be plowing corn down in the bottom field; Ann Haskel always was a full week ahead of everybody else. As for Nance—Nance wouldn't dast to give a feller so much as a drink of spring water without askin' Ann if she could.

Ahah, the mule, suddenly achieved a full stop.

Uncle Jimmie remonstrated, emphasizing his protest with vigorous heels and arms.

"You dad-burned old reprobate, what you stoppin' fer now? Giddap! Go 'long, blast you! You ain't got nothin' to think about; if you had, this ain't no time to be a-thinkin' 'bout hit. If a body war a-dyin' of thirst within ha'-a-quarter of a drink you wouldn't kee a hoot. Giddap! I ought to jest natchally git down right hyar an' hang your measly hide on the fence. Git along, will ye? G-e-e-u-u-s-e-m-o-n-high! You ain't tuck ro' hyear, be ye? Ain't you never goin' to stir your fool self?"

Had Ahab inherited the genius of his paternal ancestors who served in somewhat similar circumstances under the illustrious Balaam, he probably would have retorted: "You dad-burned old hill-billy, ain't you got no eyes in your fool head ter see what I'm a-seein'?" As it was, he mere pointed with his huge ears.

Uncle Jimmie looked.

ago when most men of his wealth are content to eat and sleep in the quiet pastures of retirement.

Diane was little more than a baby when her mother died. Mrs. Carroll's sister Jessica, a Virginia widow without children of her own, became mistress of the Carroll home and, so far as it was possible for such a woman to mother such a child, mothered Bill's daughter. But it was written that as mentor and guide to the only child of the house of Carroll, Aunt Jessica should find her responsibilities at times somewhat trying. Aided and abetted by a father who delighted in flouting Aunt Jessica's canons of culture and in violating the established laws of social propriety, Diane, as she grew into womanhood, developed a spirit and personality as unlike Aunt Jessica's model young lady as Aunt Jessica, herself, was unlike her rebellious

Less than fifty yards away a young woman was sitting before an easel.

"Wal, I'll be—Why'n heck didn't you say so?"

Less than fifty yards away a young woman was sitting before an easel, at work with brushes and colors upon a fairly large canvas.

For several minutes the old mountaineer and his melancholy mule contemplated the strange sight with silent wonder. Then Ahab, at a jerk of the rope reins, turned aside from the road with surprising willingness. Wise in the ways of his master, he knew that it would probably be some time before he would be called upon to move again.

Diane Carroll was young enough to be of this generation of freedom, and old enough to do her own thinking. Her abundance of feminine charm she inherited from her mother, who was a daughter of a famous governor of Virginia. Her self-reliance and her amazing indifference to the social tenets of the caste into which she was born she, without doubt, inherited from her father, who, in his day, had defied the family traditions and rebelled against the authority of his clan in the same spirit of joyous adventure.

Born to the traditional silver spoon, but impelled, perhaps, by the blood of some sportsman ancestor to old-fashioned ideas of sportsmanship, Bill Carroll had elected to play the game of life for the sake of the game itself. He had fought, not for the gate receipts, but for the sheer joy of fighting. Equipping himself with an engineer's degree, he had gone West to serve in the ranks of his profession when Arizona, Montana, and Nevada were young. He made a fortune—which he did not need—in copper, was a Rough Rider with Roosevelt, took a hand in politics, and finally died in harness at an brother-in-law.

"The poor child," Aunt Jessica frequently complained in tearful despair, "grows more like her father every day. What in the world am I to do?"

What, indeed, was she to do? What was anybody to do?

Bill Carroll, understanding his daughter as no one else could, and instinctively believing in her genius, encouraged her to study art seriously.

"Don't dabble at it," he would say. "If you have no appreciation of the great souls who are giving themselves through the medium of form and color to the enrichment of human life, you can, at least, be decent enough to refrain from making a plaything out of what, to them, is most vital to their existence. Dabblers are an abomination unto the Lord. Their dabbling is an insult to every real worker whose work is a grim necessity."

Diane did not "dabble." In the same spirit which led sons of wealth and social position to enlist as buck privates in the Great War, she enlisted to serve her apprenticeship with those self-supporting, self-respecting, self-sufficient but poverty-stricken students who dare to stake the years of their life in the great gamble. As desperately as they worked and played and lived she worked and played and lived. But Jessica was scandalized, but helpless. The girl's father "gloried in her spirit" and rooted for her madly as he watched her playing the game without fear or favor. When her first picture was accepted, Bill staged a celebration at home which would have stunned Diane's fellow-students in Paris. It sent Aunt Jessica to bed for a week.

HIGH SCHOOL "BUNNIES" DEFEATED BY LANGHORNE

By Oscar Corn
The Bristol High "Bunnies" dropped their second Lower Bucks County League game of the season, to Langhorne High, yesterday. The final score was 5 to 3.

The "Bunnies" can credit the losing of this game to their errors and poor playing. Only one Langhorne run was scored, that was not due to a Bristol error.

In the third inning, Derry got on base via an error, and scored on Mattarazzo's single. In the fourth, both Vansant and McKenna scored on overthrows. Lawrence reached first on an error, in the fifth, and then scored on Smith's single. Langhorne got their only earned run in the sixth, when Darrah singled and Meldrum scored him with another single.

Bristol tallied in the second canto, when Gibson walked, stole second and came home on Stallone's sacrifice bunt. In the third Gibson came through with a double which scored both Wright and Rockhill.

On Friday, Bristol will meet River-side High on the home diamond.

INTERESTING BOUTS ARE BOOKED FOR THE ARENA

TRENTON, N. J., May 9—Paul Boesch, spectacular Brooklyn youngster, has for two years now been the most popular grappler to appear at the weekly Arena wrestling shows. Paul has participated in some of the most thrilling battles that Johnny Ipp has presented at the local amphitheatre, and now that Johnny has been able to snare the handsome youngster away from Canada, where he became an overnight sensation, Ipp has pitted him against one of the most powerful and capable men in the game.

Boesch's opponent will be Jim McMillan, one of the leading contenders for heavyweight honors, and flying tackle expert de luxe. Jim made his only appearance at the Arena in several years a few weeks ago against Bert Rubi, brilliant Hungarian youngster, and while Rubi seemed to have the upper hand during the contest, Jim was gradually wearing his younger foe down, and when Bert missed a vicious lunge and fell heavily on his side he so severely injured himself that the referee wisely stopped the contest.

HULMEVILLE BLANKS EMILIE; SCORE, 7 TO 0

LOWER BUCKS COUNTY LEAGUE
Schedule for Tonight
A. O. H. at PARKLAND

Bristol A. A. continued its good work last night on Leedom's field, taking into camp the Parkland A. A. team by the score of 7-0. Bristol made thirteen hits to the visitors' six.

"Niggle" Brescia's triple with two on base in the first canto started the A. A. off to victory. Stromp and Massilla made three hits each for the winners while McCarthy grabbed three for the losers.

"Milt" Jones did the twirling for Mulholland's team and never was in serious danger.

EMILIE, May 9—Howard Black was in his old-time form last night on the Emilie diamond as Hulmeville A. A. blanked the Odd Fellows, 7-0. In whitewashing the Oddies, Black allowed but one safe hit and that came in the last inning. Manager Ashby, of the Radcliffe street clan, delivered the single.

Black struck out nine batters and passed but one. Besides his work on the hill, the Hulmeville curver connected for two hits in two official trips to the plate.

Hulmeville won the game in the second inning when five runs crossed the plate, on three passes, a single, and an error.

CORNWELLS, May 9—Tom Dean, former Hibernian hurler, faced his old mates last night on the Bensalem High School field and turned in Cornwells' second victory of the infant season. Final tabulations were: Cornwells, 5; Hibernians, 3.

In beating the Hibs, Dean allowed four hits. The only player the Cornwells slanted had trouble in retiring was "Gige" Dougherty. Dougherty made a triple and single and drew a pass in three trips to the plate. In all, the Big Green made four bingles. "Pete" Firce did the twirling for the losers and with the exception of the third inning did fine work. In this canto, Farenio singled, Riemer sacrificed, David doubled, Devlin drew a pass, and then Sullivan and Dean slammed out singles.

St. Ann's Fails To Win In Opening Season

Hibbs gave the squeeze ball signal to Leinheiser but the pitch was high and Hibbs failed to bunt. Seeing a chance to trap the baserunner Angelo pegged to third but the ball struck the baserunner and went into the crowd, Leinheiser scampering across the platter.

In the following inning Dougherty singled, was sacrificed to second, and came tearing to the plate on Dick's hit to left field.

St. Ann's passed up several opportunities to score early in the fracas. In the first two runs went across the platter and three were still on base when the side was retired. Two more were left stranded in the second and in the fifth again two runners were left when the third out came. In the last inning Tosti singled but was doubled when Dougherty caught Oriola's bunt. Bornice followed with a single but Angelo fanned.

Tonight on Leedom's field, Damp Wash will meet the Jefferson A. C.

regretted that more facts are not available, that some one did not have the foresight to record on paper some interesting anecdotes concerning him. Family tradition says that Major Barnsley had a retinue of servants and kept an "open house," and that he dressed in a scarlet coat, buff breeches, gold knee buckles and wore a cocked hat and dress sword, all in keeping with the retired officers of the period.

However, no contemporaneous accounts of the Major have come down to us, and all we can do now is to surmise what he and his home life at Croydon was like.

Senate, and that ability is an asset of highest value to the people of this State.

In the Primary, on May 15th, Senator Reed and thereby help Pennsylvania to retain the advantage our people have in his ability, experience, seniority and position of leadership in the United States Senate.

A Deluge of Dollars Is Being Pumped Out of Pennsylvania To Be Distributed To The South and West

Whether you are a job-holder, merchant, business man, banker, or one engaged in a professional pursuit, you are paying these dollars—and at an average rate of

$100 GOING OUT FOR EVERY DOLLAR THAT IS COMING BACK

The question you have got to decide is whether you are going to have able, experienced and courageous representation in the U. S. Senate in these all-important matters, or representation that has pledged itself to "yes" all proposals, good or bad, in which you are made the object of some new experiment.

Normally Pennsylvania pays one-tenth of the whole national tax bill. So, when the Federal Government hands out ten billions of dollars in various kinds of subsidies, a billion dollars of that sum is a mortgage upon Pennsylvania and must be paid by the people of this State.

If you buy food and clothing, there is no way that you can escape your share of the 100-to-1 ratio in which Pennsylvanians are being assessed to finance this subsidy.

HERE ARE THE GOVERNMENT'S OWN FIGURES ON THE SUBJECT

How much is a billion dollars? It is the equivalent of a dollar a minute from the beginning of the Christian Era to the present time.

And that mortgage already has been created against this State and its people. Directly and indirectly you will shoulder that burden when we begin to "pay the fiddler" through crushing taxes that will bear down upon every man and woman in this Commonwealth.

BUT THAT IS NOT ALL

The Federal Government (under A.A.A.) has entered upon a constantly expanding program of paying the large producers of Cotton, Wheat, Corn, Hogs, etc., to curtail production. The object of this curtailment is to increase the prices of those agricultural products.

The money for this particular subsidy does not come from the general tax fund, but is derived from special taxes imposed upon the processing of these subsidized products. These taxes are added into the retail prices of foods and clothing.

In other words, to prices that already have been raised through controlled production, there is added another increase to pay for the subsidy which caused the first increase.

THOSE ARE SOME OF THE FACTS THAT ARE JUST COMING TO LIGHT

Few States are so vitally affected by national legislation as Pennsylvania, and no State has greater need for a U.S. Senator who, in ability, courage and experience, is fitted for the rigorous requirements of looking after his State's diversified interests.

In these circumstances, failure of Pennsylvania to retain Senator David A. Reed in the U. S. Senate would be almost inconceivable—and especially so since his principal opponent for the Republican nomination has pledged himself to ALL the policies of a Democratic Administration, irrespective of their consequences to the people of this State.

Senator Reed is rounding out 12 years of service in which he not only has acquired invaluable experience, but also a seniority by which he is the ranking member of the powerful Finance Committee and an acknowledged leader in the upper branch of Congress. Outstanding members of both political parties characterize him as one of the ablest members of the Senate, and that ability is an asset of highest value to the people of
